Labs & Activities - Cornell Institute for Biology Teachers

In this lesson students are introduced to solutions through performing a lab activity. The goal of this lab activity is to give students a chance to make some solutions so that they have something visual to think about as we discuss solutions. The goal is also to give students an overview of what we will be learning about pertaining to solutions.

Experiment 16 The Solution is Dilution

1 L solution 0.6000 mol NaCl. 1000 mL solution 1 L solution 500.0 mL solution $\times \times$
 $\times = 17.53 \text{ g NaCl}$. Answer: Using a balance, measure out 17.53 g of NaCl into a small beaker and transfer it to a 500-mL volumetric flask. A funnel may be necessary to transfer the solid into the flask.

This activity is designed for high school chemistry classes. It is to be used during the study of solutions when solubility and miscibility have been introduced. One class period would be plenty of time for introduction of lab and completion of an informal lab report. Use standard laboratory precautions. Subject: Chemistry
Resource Type: Lab Activity

Properties of Mixtures vs. Solutions: Mix It Up! - Lesson

Grade Level: High school and college students. In this experiment, students titrate a hydrochloric acid solution with a sodium hydroxide solution using a Go Direct® Drop Counter in the process. They then use a pH sensor to monitor changes in pH as the sodium hydroxide solution is added to a hydrochloric acid solution and plot a graph of pH vs. volume. Students then use the graph to determine the equivalence point of the titration and use these results to calculate the concentration of the
